

Jacobo Marcus, Program Director, Hopi Tutskwa Permaculture Institute

- I do hope that this emerging group finds a way to move forward in a positive directions knowing that it is for the sake of our planet that everyone act with a sense of urgency to support each other to create a network of communities, learning centers and volunteers who actively participate in reversing global destruction.
- Below are a few slides I had prepared for my presentation if you are able please share with everyone and let them know that anything is possible and that it is time to be bold!

Solutions

- ▶ Restoring vegetation, protecting biodiversity. Stabelizing the watershed and creating a healing environment right outside ones doorstep is something that all People can participate in. This work should be incentivized, supported and coordinated with communities Globally! In this way communities can be a part of the solution in combating global destruction.
- ▶ Restoring and protecting the environment will benefit every human being on the Earth and can ensure that future generations inherit a world with functional ecosystems and thriving communities. This is where resources and money should be spent, creating jobs that engage the people most affected by climate change. Work with community organizations and groups to give them resources and the money rather than giving it to the people who caused the climate to change in the first place.
